

Anthony Wilson Managing Partner (Dubai)

Anthony has practiced as an international disputes lawyer for more than 15 years with a particular focus on Middle East matters. He has notable expertise in handling complex and high-value construction claims, especially in the power, infrastructure and oil and gas sectors.

He has represented multi-national corporations and governmental entities in international arbitrations (including related ancillary proceedings), both institutional and ad hoc, including under the LCIA, ICC, AAA, SIAC, CRCICA, DIAC, UNCITRAL and ICSID rules, expert determinations, mediations and UK and international litigation.

Before joining the firm in 2014, Anthony was a partner and head of international construction disputes at Wragge & Co LLP. Prior to that he was a partner in the Cairo office of Hafez, a leading Middle-East based arbitration practice. Anthony also previously practised at Clifford Chance LLP and Shearman & Sterling LLP (in both Paris and London) and in the London office of King & Spalding LLP as counsel.

Recent international disputes Anthony has advised on include:

- + Ongoing representation of a leading Middle East contractor in DIAC arbitration proceedings regarding a major residential project in the UAE.
- + Successful representation of a contractor joint venture in CRCIA arbitration proceedings in Cairo regarding a landmark hotel and retail development in Egypt.
- + Successful representation of the affiliate of a major US power developer in multiple expert determination proceedings in Oman.
