

Will Buckby

Partner

Will joined Beale & Company from a leading international consulting engineering company with offices in the United Kingdom and the Middle East. Prior to that Will practiced as a construction lawyer at Shadbolt & Co, a leading international construction practice in London.

Will is a contracts advisory lawyer and specialises in development, construction and engineering matters in the UK and across the globe, particularly the Middle East and Africa. He is highly experienced at advising on: standard forms of contract including FIDIC and EDF; bespoke agreements in relation to construction contracts, professional appointments, collateral warranties, parent company guarantees, bonds, joint venture arrangements, alliancing and other associated documentation; and various forms of PPP.

Will's recent notable projects include:

- + Advising one of the largest contractors in the Middle East in relation to its tender for the Oman National Rail Project, Segment 1 (the Sohar-Buraimi stretch, connecting the Port of Sohar in Oman with Al Buraimi and Khatmat Milaha in the UAE).
- + Acting for an international consultant providing detailed masterplanning and engineering services for the Saudi Industrial Property Authorities 2013 Industrial City Programme of Works.
- + Advising on a sub-contract for dredging and backfilling works for the Safaniya Phase 3 Project (one of the largest oilfields in the world, located 200km north of Dhahran in the Persian Gulf, Saudi Arabia).
- + Advising a gulf contractor in relation to the design, manufacturing, supply, installation and commissioning of floating pontoons at Sas Al Nakhil, Abu Dhabi.
- + Advising a contractor in relation to the construction of the Al Warsan Village, International City, Dubai.

Will has a monthly section in LexisNexis' Construction Law journal. He is also a regular speaker on issues relating to construction and engineering.
